Please don't follow the way that the city of Seattle is handling the homelessness issue. I moved from Seattle back to Shoreline because the homelessness issue got so bad in the last 5 years. The way they handle the issue is enabling people to stay in the poor situation they are in. By allowing people to sleep in tents or motorhomes wherever they want, it is projecting an image that it is acceptable and the norm. This is an injustice to both the homeless and those living around these camps. We need to spend time and money on rehabilitation, counseling and job training.

I love the city of Shoreline and I don't want to see it fall apart the way that Seattle has. I just had to give my input on this issue.

Thanks
