Will –

Police can always exercise their discretion on whether or not to issue a ticket.

The language proposed states that if a person is found in violation then they shall be deemed to have committed a parking infraction and shall be subject to the $50 penalty.

We don't want to use may in this situation. "Shall be subject" does not mean that police have to issue the citation – they can use their discretion.

Would you like this in the Green Folder?

10.05.035 of the proposed code says someone found to be in violation "shall be subject to a monetary penalty". Is there the ability to issue warnings?

Do you still have the educational card from Tacoma that I gave you a couple months ago? As I recall, it said something like "This is not a parking citation, but it could have been. We want you to enjoy visiting and shopping in Shoreline. This warning was issued because you committed a parking violation. Please review the parking regulations on this card so you can avoid getting a citation and a minimum violation fee of $50 on your next visit."
