7. A homeless shelter adds value to the community by improving quality of life for our most vulnerable citizens. As costs of living continue to rise in King County, residents with low socioeconomic standing are increasingly at risk of losing their homes. In the face of the COVID-19 pandemic and anticipated global recession, more and more of our community are likely to face the crisis of homelessness in the months ahead. A winter shelter is not enough. We need to provide 24/7 care for our homeless, help them to stabilize and get their feet, and not turn our backs on them. Homeless people are just as much a part of our community as housed people, they have the same inherent dignity and rights, and we should strive to recognize and support our fellow humans in a time of need.
