You are correct. Ridgecrest is open but it is very difficult to access at this point for park visitors and maintenance. Parking would mainly be on the street which would not be well received by the neighborhood.

Betsy,

I will forward this onto Eric, as this is based on his recommendation. The only piece that I would add up front is that Ridgecrest, while currently open, is impacted by light rail construction, and will be for a couple of years. I realize that this is a short term issue, but one that was part of this recommendation. Eric can also weigh in on other aspects of the recommendation. Will get back to you on this. Thanks.

Why is James Keough preferred over Ridgecrest park as an alternative location?
