7. As they say, third time's a charm! Please give the parks bond one more try on the November ballot. Although we have made two attempts to pass a bond for parks funding, I think it's imperative that we continue to ask Shoreline voters to support significant public investments that will improve access, use, visibility, and inclusiveness at parks in strategic areas of the city.

I also suggest that our public officials - city council, parks board members, planning commissioners, and aspiring candidates throw themselves into the next campaign to demonstrate support for the public policy direction expressed in our adopted plans, regulations, and vision for the future. Leaders in our community must step up to assist campaign volunteers to get out the vote - help us get your constituents to say Yes! to parks.

Thank you, Robin McClelland
